A Little More About the Distilleries for the Scotch Drinkers

The Glenlivet distillery, located near Ballindalloch in Moray, Scotland, is the oldest legal distillery in the parish of Glenlivet. Founded in 1842, it has operated almost continuously since then, closing only during World War II by a Government decree. Glenlivet brands are the biggest selling single malt whisky in the U.S. and the second globally.

Today, the distillery is owned by the French alcoholic beverages company Pernod Richard, which also oversees the distillery's production of 5,900,000 proof litres per year. The majority of this – enough for 6 million bottles – is sold as The Glenlivet single malt, with the remainder being used in Pernod Ricard's blended whisky brands.

Bowmore distillery produces Scotch whisky on the Isle of Islay, an island of the Inner Hebrides. The distillery, which lies on the South Eastern shore of Loch Indaal, is one of the oldest in Scotland, having been established in 1799 and is the oldest running distillery on Islay. The distillery was closed in 1915 and remained closed until it was purchased and reopened in 1926.

Similar to Glenlivet, the Bowmore distillery halted production during WW II and hosted RAF Coastal Command which operated flying boats on anti-submarine mission. Two other interesting facts: a bottle of 1850 Bowmore Single Malt was sold at an auction in September 2007 for £29,400 ($38,048 U.S.at today's exchange rate); and the waste heat from the distillation process is used to heat a nearby public swimming pool which was built in one of the distillery's former warehouses.

Aberfeldy Distillery was founded by John Dewar & Sons, Ltd. in 1896, and opened in 1898. The distillery is located on the eastern outskirts of Aberfeldy, a city in the center of Scotland and some five miles east of Loch Tay and the town of Kenmore.

Due to the demand for barley as a basic foodstuff during World War I the distillery was closed from 1917 to 1919 was again forced to shut down for some for a period of time during WW II. However, the whiskey supply to final markets was kept up by reducing the period whisky was laid up from seven years to three years. The Aberfeldy 12 Year Old Single Malt brand was introduced in 1999. Aberfeldy is the largest malt whisky component of Dewar's Blended Whisky.

What Veterans Need to Know (. . . That the VA Does Not Disclose)

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two-part presentation prepared by Attorney Jim Swain. This week's material discusses "Eligibility for Veterans Pensions." In it he outlines information veterans may need to know, but that the "VA does not disclose."

Since the material is somewhat lengthy, and is presented in a Q&A form and in which Swain outlines in red type "what the VA does not disclose," readers will need to click here to read the first of this two part series. As an attorney, Jim's areas includes in his list of practice areas Veteran Pension Planning and Medicaid and Elder Law Planning.

In future issues we anticipate including material prepared for our readership by Matthew Johnson, an attorney at Georgia Veterans Law. - hdh

PACT Act Filings - - -
Whether It's a Timeline or Deadline

Certain Dates Should Not Be Ignored

The PACT Act ushers in a range of VA health care options and benefits for millions of veterans who were exposed to burn pits, Agent Orange and other toxins. It covers those who were exposed in Iraq and Afghanistan, veterans who encountered Agent Orange in Vietnam and others.

The American Legion website has some important information about filing timelines that veterans should be aware of. For example, if you file your PACT Act claim — or submit your intent to file — by Aug. 9, 2023, you may receive benefits backdated to Aug. 10, 2022.

There is also a deadline for some post-9/11 veterans to enroll for VA health care under a special one-year window opened by the PACT Act. The bill automatically assumes those who served in certain locations were exposed.

American Legion National Commander Vincent J. “Jim” Troiola's July 26 letter to the membership, which is on the national website, is an excellent reference site to review. You may access it by clicking here.
